Fascism - The Fusion of Mob and Government

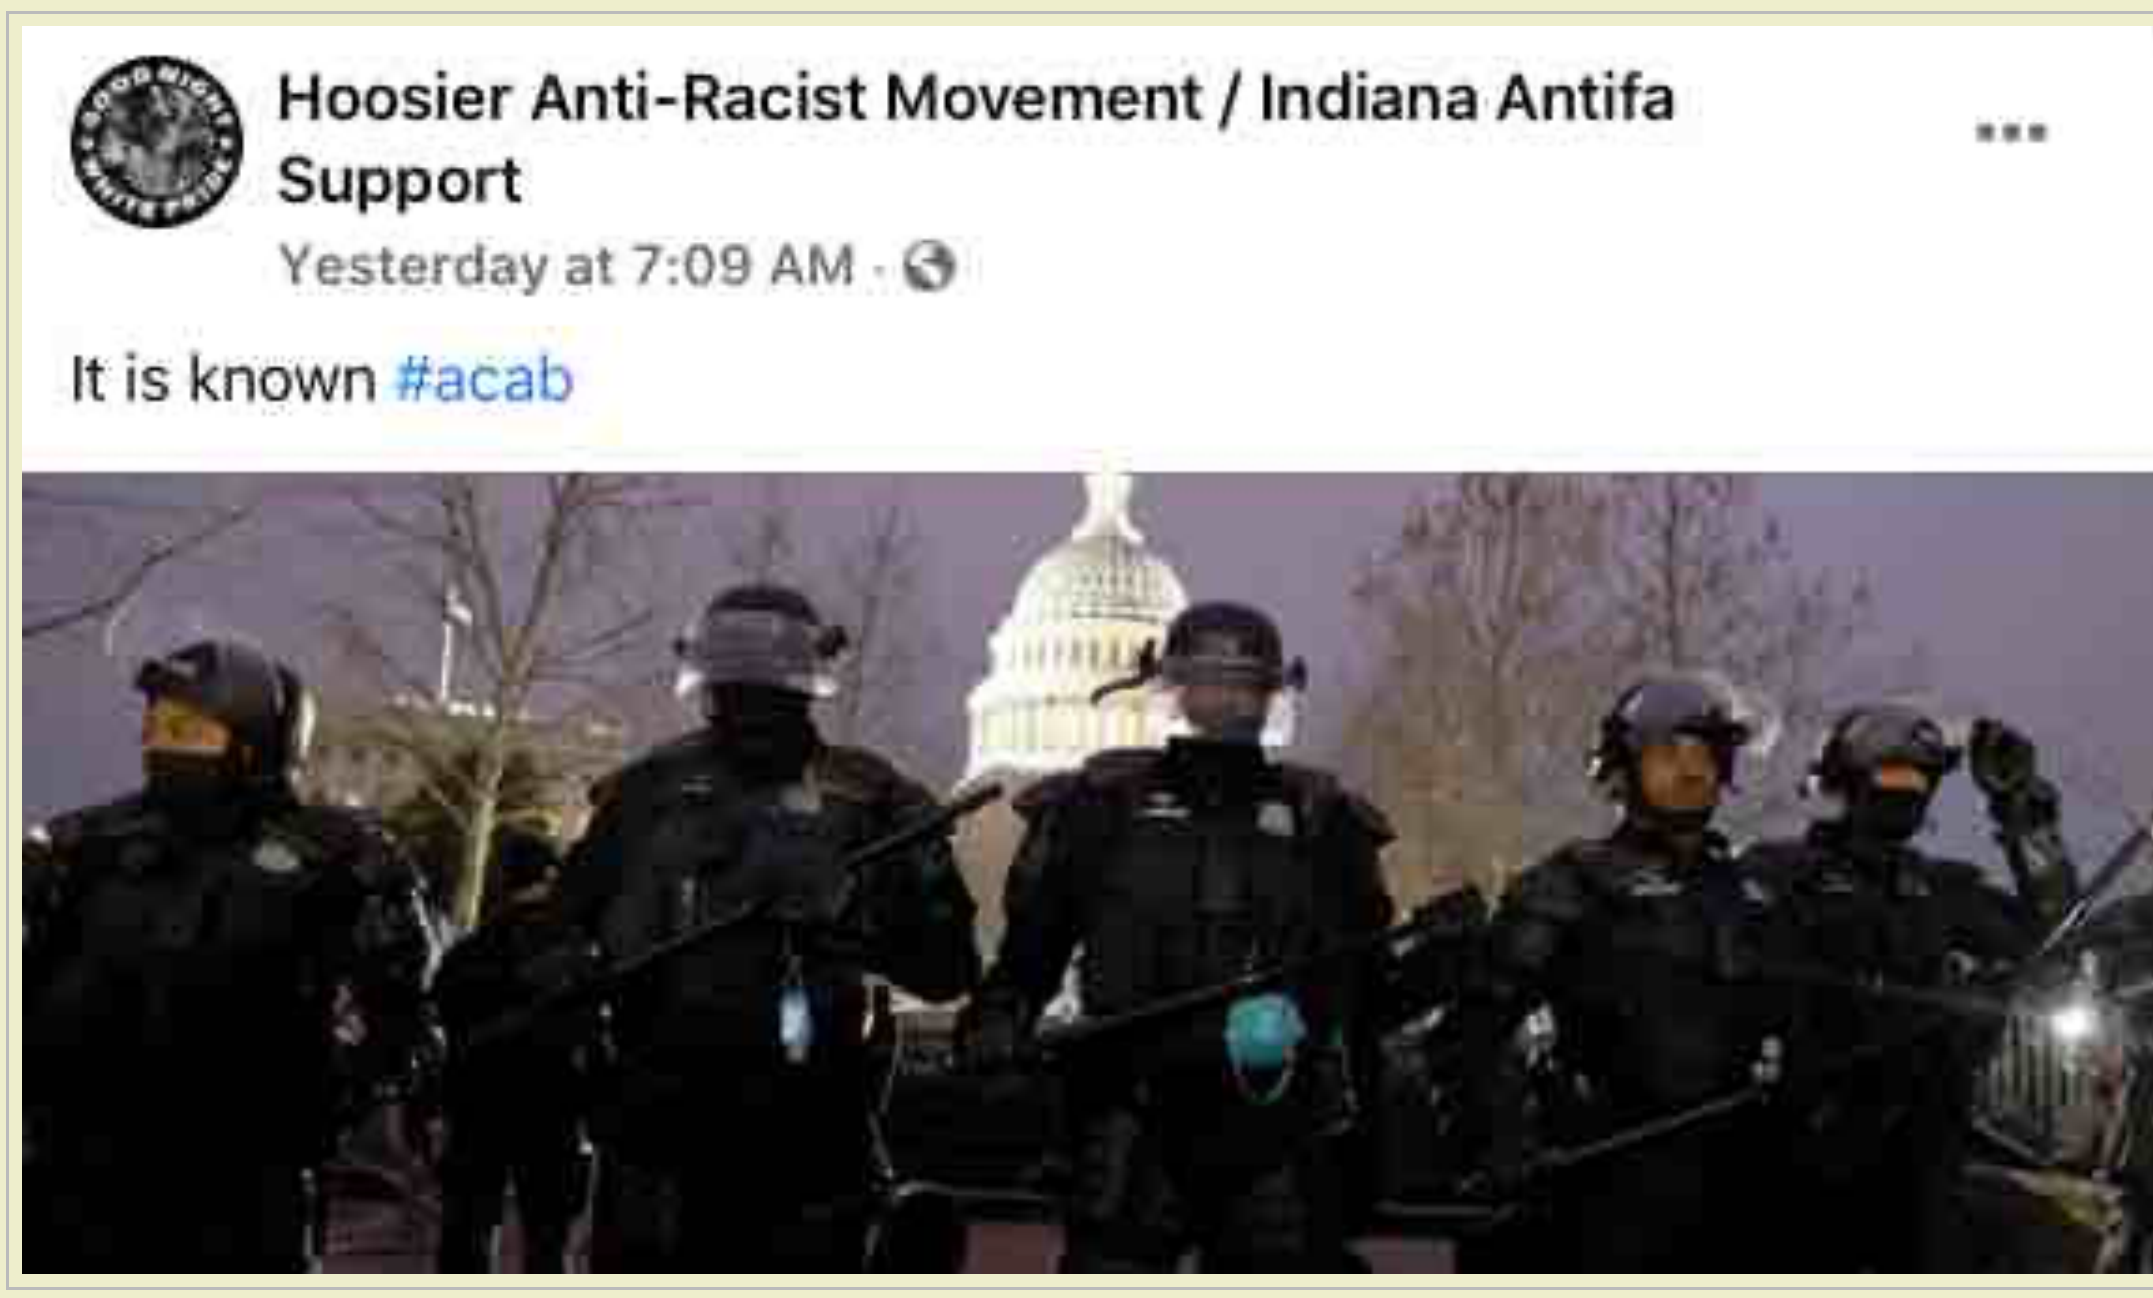

Pawnman - Maj Jason P. Williams

Mussolini, the father of fascism who literally wrote the book On Fascism, placed the goals of the state/party over the rights of individuals as all authoritarian systems do. The defining characteristic of fascism, however, is the takeover of government machinery through the use of a mob and a gang of thugs that intimidates citizens and government officials until, step by step, it is able to begin controlling some government machinery in concert with private company collusion and mob intimidation tactics. As it begins to spread its power and gain more control of government, it can then give its mob actions official validation and begin to fully control government. This is how Mussolini, and his temporary German friend, gained power in the 1940s. Using a mob of Blackshirts or Brownshirts to silence critical opinions in the media, including through violence, and then later with armed agents of the state.

This blog has devoted significant effort to point out fascist attitudes in our military. While I was active duty the term fascism was seen as "tin foil" or hyperbolic. This was true even while discussing President Obama lobbying for and signing into law the ability of the president to use the military to arrest Americans citizens without charge or trial, in America, and imprison them without due process. It was even true when Obama began placing the names of American citizens on an assassination list and then using our weapons of warfare to execute citizens without judicial process. Not only was pointing out this grievous tyranny subjected to tin foil memes and claims of "crazy" conspiracy theories, many military officers even justified and celebrated the murder of their countrymen.

For example, Major Jason P. Williams, celebrated his government using airpower to murder an American citizen outside a war zone who was posing no imminent threat to anybody and he was part of a larger group of military officers publicly joking about using fighter and bomber munitions on Occupy Wallstreet protestors in a thread that has since been deleted. As a B-1 weapons officer, Maj Williams could have potentially been in a position to carry out such actions himself and so his value system and position is not merely academic. Further, Maj Williams vocally decried military officers who would refuse any illegal order to deprive American citizens of life without due process as being somehow unprofessional demonstrating the magnitude of his view and characterizing assassinating Americans without due process as simply "[doing \[your\] job](#)" and voicing a dissent is merely "bitching." His value system is representative of a large portion of Air Force officers today and he is publicly vocal about it.

Well before the current efforts to purge "extremists" from military ranks (extremist being undefined yet fully understood to mean people of a conservative leaning who place the rights of Americans above unlawful edicts of government officials), the value system of military officers has long been fertile ground for the rise of fascism. Internet and digital mob action has silenced voices of dissent and manufactured the impression of unanimity with regard to fascist values. University positions have been filled with those sharing Marxist or fascist values that center a target on core American values such as the acknowledgment of individual rights and government limited by our Constitution. A lexicon of distorted and warped language has been created to further use the internet and academic environments to infuse American minds with anti-American and anti-liberty values that are transparently contradictory.

Simultaneously, mobs of Marxists, fascists, and anarchists use this new lexicon of contradictory jargon to justify violence and intimidation mob tactics against speakers on college campuses. Groups such as Antifa, which operates in Bloomington Indiana where Maj Williams teaches young minds as an AFROTC Detachment 215 instructor, spread the view that America is systemically racist, immorally capitalist, and express the view that core American values of reason and individual rights are relics of an immoral American past that must be done away with and replaced. The tactics that Antifa employ are the same tactics used by the Blackshirts and Brownshirts from 1940s European history, although their lexicon allows them to deem their actions somehow antifascist. They frequently espouse violence in response to speech and viewpoints they disagree with.

Our nation is currently experiencing an increased fusion as these fascist forces begin to advance from mob tactics to controlling an increasing number of government levers of power. This is true in our nation's larger political situation and it plays out in more local arenas in my experience.

For example, consider the merging of military officers I have criticized for fascist beliefs while they wore the uniform with Antifa Marxists on Bainbridge Island. While they have many surface differences they are united in fascist principles and the drive to silence voices of dissent. There retired Air Force Lt Col Daniel Tarleton joined a group, and financed an effort to silence protected speech, that included an Antifa felon who beat his girlfriend with a bat and sent her to the ER after she left a heated argument, along with a prolific Antifa propagandist (who was sued twice for defamation, lost a $5 million defamation suit, and who was ruled a "brazen" and "knowing" liar by the judge) in concert with Brandon Bryant (a man arrested and currently facing a felony jury trial for threatening the mass murder of government officials in Montana). The group also included a local Antifa activist named Rachael Kentner who praised the Antifa attacker that was shot and killed by police in Tacoma after he launched an armed attack against a government facility.

Air Force Major Jason P. Williams has also participated in this group's efforts to silence voices of dissent across the internet which point out fascist values and actions. Through his cooperation with Antifa operatives like Rachael Kentner and through his public comments on military message boards, Maj Williams is on the front lines of the effort to demonetize traditional American values through his participation.

This merging of violent mob and government that controls the monopoly of violence, using demonetization campaigns and intimidation and efforts to silence dissenting views, is a hallmark of the kind of fascism we see in black and white pictures in history books. While Blackshirts would destroy press equipment and beat up press workers, today's mob primarily seeks to destroy it through online censorship and by equating journalism they don't agree with as "stalking" although they do not hide their approval of violence applied for those same ends. As I have long maintained, a military uniform is just clothing and does not represent the actual values of the individual wearing it. Fascist groups throughout history are replete with examples of a fascist exchanging their black shirt for a military uniform.

Un-American values must be challenged while Americans still have any shred of a voice to do so. Unchecked, fascists will remove that voice. We should use that voice while we still have it in some measure.

About Me

PickYourBattles.Net

My name is Rick Rynearson. I was an Air Force command pilot & field grade officer and am now retired. I grew up an Air Force dependent (my father retired a CMSgt). I have eight deployments to OEF/OIF as a close air support attack pilot, more than one thousand combat flight hours, seven Air Medals and a Distinguished Flying Cross for valor. At 15 years into my career I resigned my commission & refused an order to assassinate an American citizen without charge or trial -- an order issued by the Obama/Biden administration; my resignation was not accepted & I was ultimately vindicated by the Air Force. I have a B.A. in religion from the Florida State University. My wife is a Harvard educated former Air Force intelligence officer turned civilian lawyer, former clerk for the Supreme Court of the United States, and Air Force Reserve JAG.

Why This Blog?

There are several reasons for this blog. First, I believe I have something to contribute to an important discussion. Second, traditional military avenues of discussion (PME) have proven ineffective methods for dialogue. Third, the Air Force "Emerging Technologies" division of Public Affairs released instructional guidance for "each Airman to act as a communicator to be the voice of the Air Force in the blogosphere" while noting "there are movements within DoD to explore a broader, more aggressive and holistic approach... to integrate communicators" and stating, "the rules of the game have clearly changed." Finally, this blog served as a sounding board for a master's thesis I have completed entitled, "The Smartest Guys in the Room and the Best of the Best." The thesis examines the culture of Enron and Air Force fighter pilot culture, finds similarities, and makes recommendations.

The Smartest Guys in the Room and the Best of the Best: Max Performing Air Force Culture

In accordance with the PA guidelines mentioned above, this blog seeks to provide one personal, transparent, credible perspective -- among other perspectives online -- with the goal of furthering conversation to help foster a stronger, more relevant Air Force. The intent of this blog is to be transparent and is not used to hide identity. Readers are encouraged to post comments or email me if they think form or substance in this blog is an issue. All criticism is welcomed. For more info on blogging and the Air Force please see my first blog post.

Note: As Tony Carr (despite claims otherwise), FlyingSquadron.Com and MilitaryTimes.Com all share an affinity for banning those who present unpopular viewpoints (ie disagreeing with them), I have created a Facebook page to share such banned opinions. Please visit Martial Matters if you are interested in that less civil discussion.

The postings on this site are my own and don't necessarily represent Air Force positions, strategies or opinions.

Rynearson would have avoided the whole mess if he didn't seem to be hiding something. He was acting suspicious, refusing to roll down his window. That alerted BP. Was he a threat? No, but they needed to make sure he was who he claimed to be and not some drug smuggler or whatever. As for the other crimes Richard should be arrested for, they are harassment and cyberstalking. But thanks to Richard, cyberstalking is not a crime. He sure loves to dish it out, but he can't take it. Typical. He's a gaslighting narcissistic hypocrite and a sociopath. Don't take my word for it. Why do you lie and say I've blocked you? You clearly can see my posts. I can see yours. Fraud. Coward. I'm not ashamed to wish death to my enemies. I guess that makes me a fascist 😊

Cool. But I hope you live a long miserable life. Death would be too easy for you. You being an old fat loser suffering from your poor life choices is a much better ending. Clearly your life has zero purpose or meaning. Your legacy will be that of a garbage human that gave nothing of value to the world. We'll be using your life story as an example of how not to live. Long after you're gone, you'll simply be remembered as a troll, as a loser, as a waste of space. That's if you're remembered by anyone at all. Maybe your little sister Kristina will have something nice to say about you. Like that you chased her around the house with knives when you were a young adult. What's the age gap? 8 years? She graduated from high school in 2000 in Florida so that makes her 39ish and you're 47, so that sounds about right.

Even better would be if you got locked in a vegetative state, unable to move or communicate. Maybe a stroke or TBI. Yeah. I like the sounds of you never being able to walk or talk again, but being fully conscious and aware of your surroundings with nothing you can do. You're definitely in the high risk category for a stroke with all that excess fat, your lack of exercise, horrible diet and you live a stressful life. Yep. My money is on a stroke.

I support violent action against you. Hitler was a bad man. Some people are not redeemable. You are one. You should have never been born. I'll be cheering when you leave this earth. I'll shout it from the rooftops "Richard Lee Rynearson is finally gone!!!"

It will be stupendous. It fills me with joy just thinking about your end. Maybe it will be a myocardial infarction from eating too many cheeseburgers. Maybe you'll choke on a chicken bone. Maybe Hyland will poison your coffee. Either way, I hope your death is long and painful so you think of all the people you've harmed while you suffer in your misery. I hate you with every fiber in my body. What you did to my family deserves nothing less.

"Rynearson would find that his hopes of retiring to a quiet principled community, and leaving constitutional conflict to others, would prove unachievable. He and his wife found themselves yet again engaged in the defense of basic Constitutional rights against those of low character, who falsely represent themselves as models of liberal values, integrity, and community."

Lol. He thinks he's a martyr for free speech. He's actually just a massive asshole who pushes the envelope. He's a punk and I'd be honored to whoop his ass if he would ever crawl out of his dungeon. I believe a few blows to the head would correct this issue. Some people need a good ass beating to teach them a lesson about talking shit.

Richard is an oxymoron. He advocates for free speech, yet tries to silence any opinion he disagrees with through intimidation and humiliation. He's also a fraud. He's the only person responsible for the deaths of innocent people here. His time murdering children in Operation Iraqi Freedom is proof of that. Now he's somehow anti killing, even though his entire family served and Richard regularly mentions his service. What an idiot.

He's most certainly a stalker. He's the king of projection and deflection. Then he turns around and plays victim, ignoring the actions that led him here. He ignores the fact that he terrifies people. It's a game to him. Until it's not. He's a narcissist and a manipulative son of a bitch.

The world would be better off without Richard Lee Rynearson.
